MBBR TECHNOLOGY

The MBBR system is considered a biofilm process. MBBR systems don't need a recycling of the sludge, which is the case with activated sludge systems. Some MERITS OF MBBR compared to conventional systems are

- It has a effective sludge retention time (SRT)
- Absorbs load fluctuations
- Minimal sludge production
- Smaller area coverage

SBR TECHNOLOGY

Sequencing batch reactors (SBR) are a type of activated sludge process for the treatment of wastewater. SBR reactors treat wastewater such as sewage or output from anaerobic digesters or mechanical biological treatment facilities in batches. The treated effluent may be suitable for discharge to surface waters or possibly for use on land. The sequence /stage of treatment goes like this Fill – React – Settle – Decant- Idle.

MBR TECHNOLOGY

Membrane bioreactor (MBR) is the combination of a membrane Process like Reverse Osmosis and a biological wastewater treatment process. It is now widely used for municipal or industrial wastewater treatment. MBR processes can produce outlet of high suitable quality enough to be discharged to surface or brackish waterways or drain. Other advantages of MBRs over conventional processes include small footprint, easy install and upgrade of old wastewater treatment plants.
